Half of workers face bullying - survey

07-08-2013

A new survey suggests half of all employees have been bullied by their colleagues in the workplace.

More than 500 people were questioned in the survey for the Christian Family Service Centre. More than 60 percent of respondents said they had been insulted or suffered malicious criticism.

Half said they had been given extra work that had led to them having to do overtime. But only a few said they would complain about it.
